14th International Ship Stability Workshop

29 September - 1 October 2014
Swiss-Garden Hotel & Residences
Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia

ISSW 2014

Introduction

Safety of ships, especially their stability, has always been the concern for the international maritime community hence the first international conference on Stability of Ships and Ocean Vehicles (STAB) was held in Glasgow, Scotland in 1975. Since then, the conference was held every 3 years. Now it is becoming a tradition that the International Ship Stability Workshop (ISSW) is held annually prior to the STAB conference. The last ISSW was successfully held in Brest, France and now the 14th International Ship Stability Workshop will be in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia prior to the 2015 STAB conference in Glasgow.

Whilst a wide range of issues related to stability of ships and ocean vehicles are covered during the STAB conferences, the workshops are organised to focus more on particular subjects and recent developments in the field. As such, this workshop will discuss recent developments of new regulations, new types of ships and their stability, current research challenges, stability accidents, and others. The format of the workshop will allow participants to have not only in-depth discussions, but also an opportunity to interact with the experts in their quest to obtain answers to their queries in the related fields of ship stability.
